Description

The moving force behind the work of the Association is a network of more than one million volunteers, a membership of more than 441,000 people with diabetes, their families and caregivers, a professional society of nearly 16,500 health care professionals, as well as more than 800 staff members.

Diversity & Inclusion Statement

The American Diabetes Association is committed to embracing and drawing from the unique voices, experiences and perspectives of our staff, volunteers and partner organizations in all that we do. Our commitment to diversity and inclusion informs and empowers us to reflect and effectively serve all of our communities and constituents. Moreover, it is critical to successfully deliver on our mission and ultimately to Stop Diabetes®.

CEO Commitment To Diversity and Inclusion

Our mission is "to prevent and cure diabetes and improve the lives of all people affected by diabetes." To that end, we've released an ambitious Association 2012-2015 Strategic Plan to help us accomplish this.

We need to include a variety of thoughts and opinions—from the researchers we fund, to the people affected by or at risk for diabetes, to the volunteers and staff who make the American Diabetes Association function, and to the corporations and individuals who support us. All our communities must have a seat at the table and a voice that is heard. A strong diversity and inclusion program, therefore, is central to our mission, and I have implemented such a program for the Association.

I take it as my personal responsibility to ensure this program succeeds and to help us STOP DIABETES®.
