Description

We are problem solvers.

If you stopped by Children's Law Center, you would quickly learn what the children of DC know: we are problem solvers.

On any given day, we are helping hundreds of children solve problems that no child should face. No child should have to wonder who to live with when his parents can no longer safely care for him. No child should have to fight for the special education services she needs so she can learn. No child should have to go to court to ensure his landlord fixes the heat and water in his basement apartment during the frigid winter months.

Now celebrating more than 20 years of advocacy, we help more than 5,000 children and their families tackle seemingly insurmountable problems each year - including 1 of every 9 of the poorest children in the city's poorest neighborhoods. We multiplied this impact by partnering with hundreds of pro bono lawyers, pediatricians and city leaders. As a result of our advocacy both in and out of the courtroom, more District children are on the path to a better education, good health and a stable, loving family.
