Description

Canisius College is a master's level university that is consistently ranked among the top regional institutions in the Northeast. As one of 28 Catholic and Jesuit colleges in the nation, Canisius provides students with a transformative education rooted in a 450-year-old academic tradition of excellence, leadership and service to others.

Central to the college's mission are the Jesuit values of cura personalis (care for the whole person), the pursuit of excellence, a commitment to social justice and developing students who are "men and women for and with others." Students are prepared for purposeful careers - and lives - through exceptional programs and a multi-dimensional liberal arts foundation that instills lifelong habits of reflection and critical thinking. Canisius strives to educate the whole person - intellectually, ethically and spiritually - providing an experience that is highly personalized and collaborative. Faculty are committed to knowing students as individuals, made possible by an average class size of 17 and low 11:1 student-to-faculty ratio.

OUR PAST. OUR PROGRESS.

We, the undergraduate Afro-American students of Canisius College, recognizing the integral role black culture plays in today's society, feel that we are obligated to acclimate the Canisius College community to black culture and society, and seek cultural rapport between all people. We hope to accomplish this by unselfishly making available to the Canisius College population any resources we may have."
